Emergent Strategy - adrienne maree brown 2017-03-20

In the tradition of Octavia Butler, here is radical self-help, society-help, and planet-help to shape the futures we want. Change is constant. The world, our bodies, and our minds are in a constant state of flux. They are a stream of ever-mutating, emergent patterns. Rather than steel ourselves against such change, Emergent Strategy teaches us to map and assess the swirling structures and to read them as they happen, all the better to shape that which ultimately shapes us, personally and politically. A resolutely materialist spirituality based equally on science and science fiction: a wild feminist and afro-futurist ride! adrienne maree brown, co-editor of Octavia's Brood: Science Fiction from Social Justice Movements, is a social justice facilitator, healer, and doula living in Detroit.

Parenting Matters - National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine 2016-11-21
Decades of research have demonstrated that the parent-child dyad and the environment of the family—which includes all primary caregivers—are at the foundation of children's well-being and healthy development. From birth, children are learning and rely on parents and the other caregivers in their lives to protect and care for them. The impact of parents may never be greater than during the earliest years of life, when a child's brain is rapidly developing and when nearly all of her or his experiences are created and shaped by parents and the family environment. Parents help children build and refine their knowledge and skills, charting a trajectory for their health and well-being during childhood and beyond. The experience of parenting also impacts parents themselves. For instance, parenting can enrich and give focus to parents' lives; generate stress or calm; and create any number of emotions, including feelings of happiness, sadness, fulfillment, and anger. Parenting of young children today takes place in the context of significant ongoing developments. These include: a rapidly growing body of science on early childhood, increases in funding for programs and services for families, changing demographics of the U.S. population, and greater diversity of family structure. Additionally, parenting is increasingly being shaped by technology and increased access to information about parenting. Parenting Matters identifies parenting knowledge, attitudes, and practices associated with positive developmental outcomes in children ages 0-8; universal/preventive and targeted strategies used in a variety of settings that have been effective with parents of young children and that support the identified knowledge, attitudes, and practices; and barriers to and facilitators for parents' use of practices that lead to healthy child outcomes as well as their participation in effective programs and services. This report makes recommendations directed at an array of stakeholders, for promoting the wide-scale adoption of effective programs and services for parents and on areas that warrant further research to inform policy and practice. It is meant to serve as a roadmap for the future of parenting policy, research, and practice in the United States.

Just Hustle Every Day - Jordan S Alexander

What is the secret to success as an entrepreneur? Is it millions of dollars to invest? Is it having the free time to work 14 hours every single day? Or is it a 100% fool-proof business idea? The truth is, if you are missing this one crucial thing, you could have all those advantages plus a field of four-leaf clovers in your backyard and it would not matter. It's not sexy and it's not talked about much in the entrepreneur world, but if you are missing this critical piece of the puzzle, your business will fall apart sooner or later. According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, 20% of entrepreneurs give up by the first year, and by the fifth year, 50% close their doors and never reopen. Keep in mind this statistic only counts those very few who dare leave their "safe" old jobs and actually set out on their journey to financial independence and fulfillment. Lack of funds is certainly one important piece of the puzzle, but the missing key piece is the mindset to start something, learn as you go, and do it until it works. Many others don't even take the first step and are content griping every day about their dull jobs and crappy bosses, never changing themselves. Entrepreneurship really isn't an easy role to play. You can't expect to know what to do on your own when no one has shown you the ropes. When you go in blind, you are bound to bash yourself against a few obstacles and end up a bit worse than how you came in. That's why it is critical to learn from the failures and successes of others. You don't have nearly enough time to stumble through all the walls and pitfalls. With Hustle Every Day, you get inside access into 365 of the greatest minds from all walks of life and periods in time. You get one genius quote for each new day. Through the wisdom collected in Hustle Every Day you will discover: The number one limiting belief that is guaranteed to make success impossible no matter how hard you try Why passion and persistence trump talent and experience every time How to rise above self-doubt and shut down the critics How to make more money by doing less work The most overlooked aspect of business that can ensure financial security for years to come Why giving more to your customer makes them spend even more money Proven business strategies that have made normal people multi-millionaires time and time again Why setting unrealistic goals can make your dreams a reality Why you don't have to immediately burn all your bridges to be an entrepreneur The secret to enduring success and fulfillment (hint: it's not money) And so much more... Entrepreneurs don't fail if the results they were hoping for don't happen. They only fail when they stop learning and stop trying. If they shoot once or twice, miss the mark, and give up, they won't ever hit it. So for every shot they miss, they must adjust, then shoot again, and again, and again, until eventually, they hit the bull's eye. Even if you are considering starting your first-ever business but feel blind and helpless, or if you are an eagle-eyed veteran looking to maximize your earning potential, your attitude is what will bring you to new heights or hold you down.
